

St George Hospital and Community Health Services

1 March, 2017

St George welcomes young adult volunteers

St George Hospital recently welcomed three young adult volunteers, Ethan, Jake and Joshua (pictured), who joined the volunteer service to assist the community and the hospitals redevelopment way-finding requirements.

The volunteers are recent school leavers with a mild intellectual disability, who are volunteering at St George Hospital as part of a transition to work program. The program teaches the participants life skills for future paid employment.

St George Hospital welcomes these young adults, and looks forward to supporting them through a positive and welcoming environment.

The way-finding program is seeking further volunteer assistance from interested community members and any enquiries can be sent onto SESLHD-STG-Volunteers@health.nsw.gov.au

Health
South Eastern Sydney
Local Health District